2023 Legislature: Eats

If you're wintering in Topeka, you gotta eat!

Sure, you'll spend a lot of time in legislative sessions and committee meetings during the 2023 legislative session—but you also gotta eat while you winter in Topeka. As we've said for decades, the Kansas Statehouse army marches on its stomach!

Many locally owned restaurants are within minutes of the Statehouse. This year, we are focusing on proximity to the Statehouse. Closest? Check out the detailed article on downtown dining on pages 30-32. For a glimpse at restaurants across the city by geography, see the article that starts below and goes to pages 34-37.

For more information on downtown restaurants and eateries by geography, please check out VISIT Topeka's listings at <https://www.visittopeka.com>. Under the Eat & Drink link, you'll find the comprehensive Restaurant Guide. Scroll through the alphabetical list or search by name. Most listings have links to the restaurants' web sites and/or their Facebook pages. Plus, browse through special diets, bakeries/coffee shops, delis, steak & seafood, fun dining, fine dining, local favorites, breweries, BBQ, bar & grill, and wineries. At least three Facebook pages offer lots of information on Topeka restaurants: Topcityflavorista Local Eats & Events, Topeka Foodies, and Topeka Honest Opinion Reviews.

We didn't list your favorite? Send us a Lagniappe with your recommendation! That's our "something extra, occasionally" feature, going beyond the usual reporting of Kansas politics & government. Just send to politics@hawvernews.com.

Statehouse eats: Handy choices in the building

Closest place to eat, of course, is right in the Statehouse:

- Snack Bar, 380-W, Statehouse. Just outside the House Chamber, it's sandwiches, buy-and-go stuff mostly.
- Vending machines: Room 580-N, it's, well, vending machines for candy bars and such.
- More vending machines, and a dining room, 9-N. That's the Statehouse garden level (basement), or the entry level on north side entrance floor.
- Lettuce Feed You, an actual source of hot food and meals--just west of the dining room in the basement. Generally open 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. but sometimes longer if the Legislature is in session...

Hawver's Capitol Report joins

STATE AFFAIRS

Dear Subscribers,

We're thrilled to announce that Hawver's Capitol Report (HCR) — which celebrates its 30th anniversary this year—has become part of a growing national team of reporters and editors covering state governments around the country! We've joined State Affairs, a digital news company with a mission to be the trusted source of non-partisan news on state governments; news that inspires conversation and informs decision-making.

What does this mean for you?

On a day-to-day, it's business as usual, only now we have new resources and capabilities to continue driving value for our subscribers, including an enhanced website that we're currently building and more opportunities for Hawver's Capitol Report to provide increased in-depth coverage of issues important to Kansans.

What does this mean for us?

Hawver's Capitol Report — and that means Martin and Vickie — will continue providing stories, columns and daily updates on Kansas state government from right here in Topeka. Joining us in leading Kansas coverage under State Affairs is Alison Bethel, a veteran journalist and State Affairs' editor-in-chief.

Vickie will wind down her work on HCR over the course of this year and is looking forward to other writing projects. Martin will continue to work full-time this year and then part-time in the coming years for HCR. Currently covering his 47th Kansas legislative session, Martin will be able to work fewer hours in the future, yet continue at the job he loves — because everybody knows he couldn't retire worth a damn.

Our story continues ...

We set out 30 years ago to change how state politics

Martin
& Vickie

was covered in Kansas. After leaving daily journalism at a legacy publication, we took the opportunity to self-publish and carve out a niche. As our careers wind down, we wondered about our legacies — whether Hawver's Capitol Report would continue and who would run it.

We are convinced that State Affairs offers the best legacy platform for Hawver's Capitol Report. It is a 21st Century media model that will allow us to accomplish our late-career goals and add investigative reporting resources to our state. Joining forces with a company as passionate about quality journalism as we are will allow us to help designate a successor who will carry on our mission, which is to leave behind a more informed and inspired citizenry. State Affairs also will hire senior reporters to do enterprise and investigative stories of importance to Kansans.

We want to take this opportunity to thank each of you for putting your trust in us over the last 30 years and bringing us to where we are today. We come to work every day for you. We are committed to making quality journalism about the state government easily accessible for you. And so is our new family at State Affairs. This commitment is stronger than ever during this exciting time.

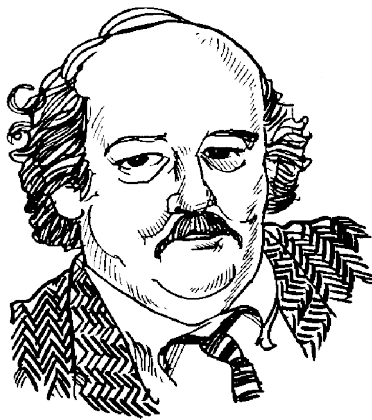

We are thrilled about the next chapter for HCR. Stay tuned to see where our growth and innovation take you from here.

Cheers!

Vickie and Martin Hawver

By MARTIN HAWVER

Who's in charge here? – That's the big question for the session, and surprisingly, it isn't the last-term

The Railster

Democrat Gov. Laura Kelly, or even the solid-override chamber chief Senate President Ty Masterson, R-Andover.

Nope, it's new House Speaker Dan Hawkins, R-Wichita, whose tiny veto override majority is going to decide just who is really in control of the state. It's his 85 GOP members whom he has to keep in line in order to override Kelly bill vetoes (needs 84 votes).

Might be weeks ahead, but we're looking for that first override vote – maybe a GOP-crafted tax bill, or Medicaid expansion, abortion restrictions or maybe what is essentially school choice that will determine just who's running this show...

And, nope, House rules don't appear to give Hawkins the power to take the underground parking space from Republicans who vote to support a gubernatorial veto, or even just wear a distinctive wrist band...

Orange House badges – No, they're blue, the badges that House members wear to identify themselves in the Statehouse, but with the demolition/reconstruction of the Docking State Office Building just across the street, and turning a parking lot into a new state office building, those orange badges might be a good way for the public to identify lawmakers, and not just those folks who still have the name badge on from last night's lobbyist-sponsored drinking party...

GOP should have no problems overriding gubernatorial vetoes.

The big issue, of course, is taxes. Speed up the roughly $500 million cost of eliminating sales taxes on groceries, diapers and feminine hygiene products, and school supplies as the governor wants, or concentrating on income taxes for Kansans and corporations? The split-up? Probably enough sales tax cuts to make nice headlines, but the income tax proposals now being talked about range from a flat tax on all Kansans to subtly paring taxes on upper-middle class wage-earners. And, of course, business/industry puts its tax cuts in terms of economic development and general statewide prosperity, which is generally avored by folks who need jobs or need to keep their jobs, and the business owners.

The other issues are complicated for lawmakers this session. Fully funding K-12 education is always near the top, but efforts to spread that state funding to assist private schools are a GOP key, and paring – or at least double-checking – welfare, unemployment and Medicaid.

Oh, and don't forget legislative pay...the current $88 a day is about the lowest in the nation and lawmakers are interested/anxious about it. It's probably time for a pay raise, but it has to be done this year – not in an election-year session – where it would be the headline on incumbent-challengers' palm cards. Stay tuned...
